Copyright Assignment Form – School Psychology Review

It is hereby agreed that in consideration of the publication of the Article indicated below:

The Author (or Coauthor) hereby assigns and transfers all of the rights, title and interest in the Article, and does hereby assign to NASP, its successors or assigns, the copyrights and all rights of whatever nature that may be incident to such copyrights in the Article, for the sole use and benefit of NASP, its successors and assigns, free and clear of all encumbrances. The Author (or Coauthor) irrevocably grants to NASP the sole and exclusive right, title and interest whatsoever (under copyright or otherwise) in and to the Article and the unencumbered right to exercise such rights in all media and by any manner and means now known or hereafter devised, in perpetuity. The Author (or Coauthor) warrants that the Article, which work was wholly original and has not been copied in whole or in part from any other works, and that neither the work nor any version or adaptation thereof has ever been published or otherwise exploited anywhere throughout the world. The Author (or Coauthor) represents and warrants that the Article contains no material that violates the copyright or person, proprietary or other right of any person or entity. The Author (or Coauthor) further warrants that it is the owner of the rights in and to the Article and that there is no valid or outstanding right, title or interest in or to or for the Article adverse to or inconsistent with the rights conveyed, granted and assigned by this Agreement.

The Author (or Coauthor) shall indemnify and hold harmless NASP, its successors and assigns from and against any lawsuits, claims, actions, proceedings, damages, costs, charges, reasonable attorney's fees, recoveries and other loss whatsoever which may be obtained against, imposed upon or suffered by NASP, its successors and assigns, by the breach of any warranty contained in this Agreement. The parties agree to notify each other of any claim, action, or proceeding against them.
